Go with us. Grow with us.

Find out more about professional positions at NYC Transit. Visit www.mta.info/mta/employment/employment_out.html and agree to the Privacy Policy. Then select NYC Transit, and discover your next career move.
Familiarize yourself with the following generic and specific professional titles when you apply for a full-time position at MTA NYC Transit.

“Staff Analyst” and “Transit Management Analyst” titles, which are generic, are the most commonly used titles for college graduates across all disciplines. A number of Staff Analyst and Transit Management Analyst jobs may be within the same department or in different departments; although the titles are the same, positions may require a variety of disciplines, qualifications, and range of responsibilities. It is extremely important to read all job descriptions thoroughly to determine the one for which you are most qualified. Successful applicants generally have strong analytical and writing skills, are self-motivated and able to work with limited supervision. Titles within the staff analyst series include:

- Staff Analyst Trainee
- Staff Analyst
- Associate Staff Analyst
- Transit Management Analyst Trainee
- Assistant Transit Management Analyst
- Associate Transit Management Analyst
- Principal Transit Management Analyst

Attorneys work in the Law and Labor Relations Departments to provide effective legal representation in litigation and transactional matters as well as arbitration and contract grievances. Attorneys furnish appropriate in-house counsel to clients throughout NYC Transit. Titles include:

- Agency Attorney Intern
- Agency Attorney
- Executive Agency Counsel
- Labor Attorney
- Senior Labor Attorney

Architects and Engineers work in various departments/divisions Transit-wide, in a variety of disciplines: Architecture, Civil/Structural, Chemical, Computer, Electrical, Environmental, Mechanical, and Systems Engineering. Titles include:

- Architectural Intern
- Assistant Architect
- Architect
- Administrative Architect
- Engineering Intern
- Assistant Engineer
- Engineer
- Administrative Engineer
- Project Manager Intern
- Project Manager
- Associate Project Manager
- Administrative Project Manager

Information Technology positions involve development and implementation of information systems; advanced fiber-optics communication networks; security & telecommunications systems; programming, web-based and database applications; technical support, and more. Educational requirements range from a high school diploma to an advanced degree, or a combination of education and experience. Titles include:

- Computer Associate
- Computer Programmer Analyst
- Computer Specialist
- Telecommunications Associate
- Computer Systems Manager

Transportation Planners conduct research, and recommend changes and improvements to transit facilities, equipment, and service. They must demonstrate strong data analyses skills pertaining to transit service, ridership and costs in order to substantiate their recommendations. Planners may have a supervisory role or actively participate in field observations to ensure desirable social, environmental, and economic impacts; and operational effectiveness and efficiency. These positions entail a diversity of disciplines, including engineering, urban studies, geography, transportation science, urban planning, economics, business, public administration, or related fields. Titles include:

- Transportation Planner Trainee
- Transportation Planner
- Senior Transportation Planner
- Principal Transportation Planner

MTA New York City Transit employs college graduates and, in some cases, high school graduates, as full-time staff employees in more than twenty-four disciplines, including:

- Accounting
- Architecture
- Business Administration
- Communications
- Computer Science/Information Technology
- Change Management
- Construction Management
- Economics
- Engineering
- Finance
- Geology
- Human Resources
- Labor Relations
- Law
- Marketing
- Nursing
- Organizational Development
- Public Administration/Policy
- Transportation Planning
- Urban Planning/Studies

MTA New York City Transit
We’re more than Subways and Buses …

Public transit can take you to great places and put you on a great career track.
Familiarize yourself with the following generic and specific professional titles when you apply for a full-time position at MTA NYC Transit.

"Staff Analyst" and "Transit Management Analyst" titles, which are generic, are the most commonly used titles for college graduates across all disciplines. A number of Staff Analyst and Transit Management Analyst jobs may be within the same department or in different departments; although the titles are the same, positions may require a variety of disciplines, qualifications, and range of responsibilities. It is extremely important to read all job descriptions thoroughly to determine the one for which you are most qualified. Successful applicants generally have strong analytical and writing skills, are self-motivated and able to work with limited supervision. Titles within the staff analyst series include:

- Staff Analyst Trainee
- Staff Analyst
- Associate Staff Analyst
- Transit Management Analyst Trainee
- Assistant Transit Management Analyst
- Associate Transit Management Analyst
- Principal Transit Management Analyst

MTA New York City Transit employs college graduates and, in some cases, high school graduates, as full-time staff employees in more than twenty-four disciplines, including:

- Accounting
- Architecture
- Business Administration
- Communications
- Computer Science/Information Technology
- Change Management
- Construction Management
- Economics
- Engineering
- Finance
- Geology
- Human Resources
- Labor Relations
- Law
- Marketing
- Nursing
- Organizational Development
- Public Administration/Policy
- Transportation Planning
- Urban Planning/Studies

Attorneys work in the Law and Labor Relations Departments to provide effective legal representation in litigation and transactional matters as well as arbitration and contract grievances. Attorneys furnish appropriate in-house counsel to clients throughout NYC Transit. Titles include:

- Agency Attorney Intern
- Agency Attorney
- Executive Agency Counsel
- Labor Attorney
- Senior Labor Attorney

Architects and Engineers work in various departments/divisions Transit-wide, in a variety of disciplines: Architecture, Civil/Structural, Chemical, Computer, Electrical, Environmental, Mechanical, and Systems Engineering. Titles include:

- Architectural Intern
- Assistant Architect
- Architect
- Administrative Architect
- Engineering Intern
- Assistant Engineer
- Engineer
- Administrative Engineer
- Project Manager Intern
- Project Manager
- Associate Project Manager
- Administrative Project Manager

Information Technology positions involve development and implementation of information systems; advanced fiber-optics communication networks; security & telecommunications systems; programming, web-based and database applications; technical support, and more. Educational requirements range from a high school diploma to an advanced degree, or a combination of education and experience. Titles include:

- Computer Associate
- Computer Programmer Analyst
- Computer Specialist
- Telecommunications Associate
- Computer Systems Manager

Transportation Planners conduct research, and recommend changes and improvements to transit facilities, equipment, and service. They must demonstrate strong data analyses skills pertaining to transit service, ridership and costs in order to substantiate their recommendations. Planners may have a supervisory role or actively participate in field observations to ensure desirable social, environmental, and economic impacts; and operational effectiveness and efficiency. These positions entail a diversity of disciplines, including engineering, urban studies, geography, transportation science, urban planning, economics, business, public administration, or related fields. Titles include:

- Transportation Planner Trainee
- Transportation Planner
- Senior Transportation Planner
- Principal Transportation Planner
Go with us. Grow with us.

Find out more about professional positions at NYC Transit. Visit www.mta.info/mta/employment/employment_out.html and agree to the Privacy Policy. Then select NYC Transit, and discover your next career move.